

VIKRAM SHARMA

Education B.Sc and M.Sc Physics from St. Stephen's College, Ph.D in Physics from Tata Institute of Fundamental Research.

Usually to be found At CSEC, when not in class. The University Coffee House was another favourite but that doesn't exist anymore.

Most recent publication Math-Magic for Class V, NCERT.

AMITABHA MUKHERJEE 56 DIRECTOR,
Centre for Science Education and Communication, Delhi

SCIENCE OF THE TIMES

It was the dismal state of science education at the university and school levels that propelled the Delhi University to establish the Centre for Science Education and Communication (CSEC) in 1986. Amitabha Mukherjee, like many others, joined CSEC as a volunteer to promote the teaching of science through practice rather than theory. Today as director of CSEC, he has provided a platform for innovation in science, mathematics and other subjects. Whether it is facing off with Yashpal on Doordarshan's erstwhile science show Turning Point, collaborating with the NGO Eklavya to create a new framework for high school science, radically restructuring the science undergraduate curriculum or working on textbooks for SCERT Delhi and NCERT, Mukherjee has made science education his constant companion.

by Purvi Malhotra

"Having an unbiased opinion, without letting his vast knowledge come in the way, is his USP."

Savithri Singh, Principal, Acharya Narendra Dev College, Delhi

SHIREEN MOOSVI 61 PROFESSOR,
Aligarh Muslim University

PAST FORWARD

When Shireen Moosvi walks into a class there is always an awe-inspired silence. After all, she is the most sought-after scholar on Mughal history. If her first book The Economy of the Mughal Empire was a unique foray into the economy of the Mughals, then her second book Episodes in the Life of Akbar sealed her fate as Akbar's pre-eminent devotee. Analysing the sleeping habits of the emperor and decoding the lifestyle of Mughal women through miniatures, are things no Indian historian had done before. Earning the respect of not just her peers but feminists alike, she has been elected, secretary, Indian History Congress; made director, Centre for Women's Studies, Aligarh Muslim University (AMU); secretary, Aligarh Historians' Society and member of the Indian Council of Historical Research.

by Gunjeet Sra

"An excellent communicator with great organisational skills, she is undeniably the star of Mughal history in India." S.Ali

Nadeem Rezavi, Reader, AMU

Education M.A. in History from Chicago University and Ph.D in History from AMU.

Usually to be found Teaching or working on her research papers at AMU.

Loves Playing with her German Shepherd and reading P.G. Wodehouse.

VIKRAM SHARMA

