VICE-CHANCELLORSPEAK R. Venkata Rao, NLSIU

“The trimester system is unique for any law school in India, which means the students and faculty have to push the bar literally without the luxury of a vacation or breaks, except for studies.”

out the luxury of a vacation or long breaks except for studies,” says R. Venkata Rao, who took over as vice-chancellor of NLSIU in May 2009.

For Professor Rao, IT, which is associated with Bangalore, is not just an acronym for information technology. It stands for “Indian talent”, best exemplified in the minimum of two or three scholarships that NLSIU students get to Oxford, Harvard or Yale. Most of the talent blossoms because the college management has empowered the students to experiment and innovate. They even bring out their own peer-reviewed law journals, most of which are circulated around the globe.

The Student Bar Association has its own constitution and runs a variety of programmes at the law school. It has already helped the school earn a distinction in areas like moot-ing, legal services, literary and cultural competitions or academic publications. NLSIU was adjudged winner, best speaker at the Asia-Pacific round of the Manfred Lachs Space Law Moot Court Competition in Sydney, Australia, and the Bar Council of India National Moot Court Competition.
