■ SOUTH DELHI POLYTECHNIC FOR WOMEN-

Established 42 years ago, the South Delhi Polytechnic for women, located in Lajpat Nagar IV (Behind Lady Shriram College), is one of the oldest Vocational Institutes in India. Though it started as a small venture with a handful of students, it's now the largest institute of its kind in the country, if not in the world. Run under the aegis of Vocational Educational Society since 1963, the institute provides vocational training and even helps the students with placements. What's more students have even been assisted to start new polytechnics with schemes drawn up to help them reach a certain standard of credibility. AASHIMA CHAUDHARY, director, south Delhi Polytechnic for Women says: "our motto is to encourage everybody, as long as they are woman and willing. This is often irrespective of their academic achievement. We are proud to find that many girls labeled as 'dropouts' or failures in academics have been absorbed successfully with remark result." Great way to go, ma'am.
