METHODOLOGY

From 2002, the INDIA TODAY-AC Nielsen-ORG-MARG Mood of the Nation Poll, besides assessing the performance of parties and leaders at the national level, began tracking the performance of chief ministers to gauge who among them are doing the job they were elected for and who the laggards are. With a sample size of 12,374 voters from 19 states and 98 parliamentary constituencies, the poll covered all age groups, and both genders in urban and rural areas. The national results of this survey, including projections for E-2009, were published in our last edition dated February 2008.
