ART EXHIBITION

Shaped in CLAY

A retrospective of a veteran sculptor is normally a huge draw and when it is coupled with a release of a book chronicling his works, the treat for art lovers gets doubled. Akar Prakar, in association with Lalit Kala Akademi and Mapin Publishing, is holding an exhibition of Sarbari Roy Choudhury till May 22 and they have also released a book on the master's work, Sensibility Objectified: The Sculptures of Sarbari Roy Choudhury, by R. Siva Kumar, professor of art history at Visva Bharati, Shantiniketan. Roy Choudhury's works reflect his expertise in the modernist tradition in which he almost magically turns clay into flesh. His work is figurative and despite his methods, which are ingrained in the West, he is connected to the traditional Indian forms of sculpture. And the size of his works, usually small, gives them a unique intimate feel. At Akar Prakar Gallery, Kolkata.
