

FESTIVAL Art Attack

The Delhi International Arts Festival from October 3 to 14 brings together more than 600 artistes on one platform.

Watch the different classical dance forms from Kathak to Manipuri performed by young dancers like Bimbavati Devi, Tanushree Das, Vidha and Abhimanyu Lal (left). Other performances include Kathak by the students of Birju Maharaj while Bharatnatyam dancers Roja Kanan, Priya Murle and N. Shreekant will perform a piece titled Bharathi. At Sri Ram Centre, Delhi, from October 4 to 6.

The black and white cinema era never stops to move us. Watch films directed by Bimal Roy—Bandini (left), Parakh, Do Bigha Zameen and Madhubati. They are a commentary of life in the '50s and '60s. A retrospective of Akira Kurosawa classics like Rashomon, The Red Beard, High and Low, Sanjuro and Doomed will also be screened. At Siri Fort Auditorium, Delhi, from October 10 to 14.

For art lovers there is an exhibition of selected works of Gieve Patel who is showcasing his work (left) after 18 years. The sculptures are inspired by Ekalavya and Daphne. On display at the Gallery Threshold, Delhi, till October 24. Also check out Tanmoy Samanta's artwork at Gallery Espace, Delhi, starting on October 9. He has taken elements from everyday surroundings and transformed them into things magical and alive.

On October 5, experience divine moments as Bhai Baldeep Singh sings Gurbani in the medieval dhrupad style and Carnatic singer Aruna Sairam (left) presents compositions of Bhakti poets from all parts of India. At the India Habitat Centre, Delhi.

by S. Sahaya Ranjit

THEATRE

The Hidden TRUTH

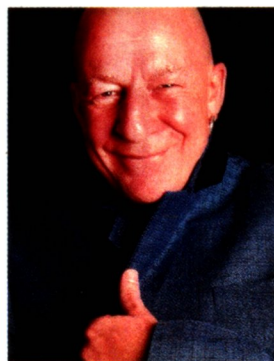

Sanitising the Tamasha dancer's form and content in Maharashtra, eliminating shringara and bringing Bhakti Rasa into Bharatanatyam; this is what comes to mind when censorship comes up. This forms the premise of Arpana Theatre's latest play *S*x, M*rality and Cens*rship* directed by Sunil Shanbag. This dramatic documentary informs and challenges its audience into questioning these norms. To top it off, the play has only been given a month's temporary censorship certificate for performances. The cast includes Nagesh Bhonsle and Gitanjali Kulkarni. At Prithvi Theatre, Mumbai, till October 4.

by Nirmala Ravindran

THEATRE

Jokes Apart

What The Comedy Store is a UK-based comedy club which has been around for nearly three decades. It's a much feted venue for stand-up acts and has acquired a reputation among audiences from the time it opened at London in 1979. This is said to be a precursor to the launch of a Comedy Store in Mumbai, to be launched at the Palladium in December.

Who Artists Jarred Christmas, Jeff Innocent (left) and Phil Nichol.

Where In Delhi at the India Habitat Centre and Epicentre, Gurgaon, (October 7 and 8) and Mumbai at St. Andrews, TBC and Taj Mahal Hotel (October 9 to 11).

by Nirmala Ravindran