RELATIVES GRIEVE
AT THE EXHUMATION

In a bid to resolve the Shopian twin rape and murder case that rocked Jammu and Kashmir in May this year, a team of doctors and forensic experts from Delhi exhumed the bodies of the two women, Neelofar Jan, 22, and her teenage sister-in-law Asiya Jan, on September 28. The case was handed over to the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) after the Special Investigation Team (SIT) appointed by the state Government failed to make a breakthrough. The CBI team conducted autopsies for about 10 hours and collected 20 samples from the women's bodies in the presence of their relatives and members of Majlis-e-

If junior Railway Minister E. Ahamed was on Twitter, this would be his latest tweet. "Ha! Finally edged out that Tharoor fellow. I represented the PM at the Saudi Royal function in Riyadh. Even the PM knows when it comes to the Gulf, I know the best."

RAIPUR | Red Revenge

Just a day after Union Home Minister P. Chidambaram visited Chhattisgarh to review preparations for an all-out offensive against Maoists, the latter struck back and shot dead Tansen Kashyap, the son of four-time Lok Sabha MP from Bastar, Baliram Kashyap, and injured his other son, Dinesh Kashyap. Bicycle-borne ultras opened fire at the brothers from close quarters, killing the former on the spot at Bedaguda village in Jagdalpur district. Dinesh, who sustained gunshot wounds, was rushed to Maharani Hospital in Jagdalpur where he is now recovering. The brothers were attacked when they stepped out after offering prayers on September 26. KERALA | Cast Out

The CPI(M) is getting increasingly uninhabitable for intellectuals. The latest to fall out is 62-year-old Sebastian Paul, three-time MP, journalist and media critic. Paul was ticked off by the party for an article criticising the leadership's intolerance against the media. He said state Secretary Pinarayi Vijayan was being misled by sycophants against the media for being critical of the LDF Government. "His attitude to criticism reminds me of Indira Gandhi's during the Emergency," he said. The party hit back through its organ Desabhimai and accused him of being blind to the concerted attack against the party by the "bourgeois media". Paul has said he was not bound to parrot the party line on all issues as: "I have been a friend and fellow traveller but not a member. The party keeps antagonising all its friends," said Paul who thrice became an MP from the Ernakulam Lok Sabha seat as a CPI(M)-backed independent. One more intellectual joins the long list of rebels thrown out by the party. by M.G. Radhakrishnan
