

DESIGNED TO KILL

Citrus-coloured, sequined and studded. Lara Dutta slips into every possible bikini variation for her role in Blue. Whether she's swimming with sharks or prancing on the sand, the tanned Dutta, styled by Rina Dhaka, looks like a complete water baby.

VS

Bandanas. Check. Chunky bracelets. Check. Knee-high boots. Check. Asin has returned to the big screen as the rocker chick of London Dreams. Styled by Ashley Rebello, the actor burns the stage in ganjees and leather jackets.

Silent Success

She might have wowed viewers in the hit Tamil film Nadodigal, but Abhinaya isn't just another pretty face. The 17-year-old can neither hear nor talk; her success is built on dedication. She will soon be seen in Nadodigal's Telugu remake and in Sasikumar's forthcoming Tamil film. "I'd carry her photographs and show them to directors wherever I went," says her actor-father Anand Verma. Abhinaya lip-reads her co-stars' dialogues and her parents rewrite the scenes in English. Where there's a will, there really is a way.

SUBIR HALDER

Safe Hands

Three penalties saved in a final shoot-out. India's football goalkeeper Subrata Paul, 23, turned India's dream of retaining the Nehru Cup into reality with that nerveless effort. The man called Mishtu turns cartwheels on the field to stay cool between penalties and reads Vivekananda and sings Kishore to stay on an even keel. He's turned a past riddled with adversity into a future where he will become one of the Indian team's most-recognised stars.

HUMMED IN

Harbhajan Singh might be a star bowler, but he wouldn't have expected this googly. The Chandigarh police handed him a challan of Rs 3,000 for driving his black Hummer without a registration number. Bhajji is in the city for the Corporate Cup. Traffic police superintendent H.S. Doon says, "No one is above the law." Do we hear S. Sreesanth chuckling?
