

NORTH: SURGING

Absolutely no surprises here. The rankings virtually reflect the popular anecdotal view of performing states in the north. You could say Delhi and Punjab are beneficiaries of Central munificence and legacy but you can't deny Himachal Pradesh its glory. Uttar Pradesh at the bottom of the table in six categories faces an enormous challenge. The region's inability to leverage its strength in agriculture—create supply chains to deliver better incomes to farmers, and its failure to create an investment environment—is clearly mirrored in its position. Himachal Pradesh, Haryana and Uttarakhand have the potential to challenge Punjab and Delhi.
