

TELEVISION

Dish Vision

Three celebrated chefs spill their kitchen secrets with their shows—Indian Food Made Easy, Kylie Kwong Cooking with Heart and Soul and Nigella Feasts—on Discovery Travel and Living this season.

ANJUM ANAND

Does your Indian food reflect Western flavours? It is a fusion between Indian food and a Western lifestyle where ingredients should be easily available and preparing should not take too much time.

KYLIE KWONG

Have you experimented with Indian ingredients? I love Indian pickles and chutneys and the vinegar, tomato, coriander and onion. I think it's a very interesting food culture.

NIGELLA LAWSON

You are said to sexualise food. Intentional or innate? I think it's a change from thinking that it's just a task. The smell and feel of the food can give a lot of pleasure. But I look better than I normally do in my kitchen.

by Pankti Mehta

FILM REVIEW

JASHNN

Press Replay

Director: Raksha Mistry and Hasnain Hyderabadwala

Starring: Adhyayan Suman, Anjana Sukhani, Shahana Goswami

RATING ★ ★ ★ ☆ ☆

What movies produced by Mahesh and Mukesh Bhatt lack in originality, they make up for in energy and passion. Adhyayan Suman, who if you don't get distracted by what appear to be collagen-laden lips, fits the part of the emotional Akash, who cannot bear to see his sister, Shahana Goswami, humiliated by the rich man whose mistress she is. As usual the Bhattas get the Sufi-sounding music and the youthful ethos of the film right. The hanging out in Baristas, the frantic SMSing when in love, the desire to be somebody, and the constant need for money. In a riveting scene, Ad-hyayan goes to a restaurant and ends up stealing when he realises he can't pay the bill. And I won't deny a tear in my eye at the end when Adhyayan calls on his sister to receive the award for him. It's hokum but it works. For a while, until the been-there-seen-that feeling takes over.

by Kaveree Bamzai

IF YOU HAVE 30 MINUTES, walk into Gallery Espace, Delhi, and see the video art of Gigi Scaria and Surekha Jehangir Jani from July 29 to August 1.

MUSIC

Power VOCALS

Forty years is a long time in any career, especially one in showbiz. But don't say that to India's undisputed pop-queen Usha Uthup, just over 60, who has been belting out one hit number after the other. From 1969 to now, Usha's journey has been as colourful as her silk saris. From night-club crooner to playback singer to stage performer to judge and to being one of the most respected pop divas—this is Usha's story. Even without formal training in music, her powerful voice with its velvety deep resonance was an instant hit. A new meaning was given to music as the sari-clad singer's voice caught on at Trincas in Kolkata. Whether it is One two cha-cha-cha, Ramba ho, samba ho, Hari om Hari or Tobu tumi sundari koto, Kolkata, the energy she brings to stage is simply electrifying. Such is her magic that even 40 years on, the audience believes she is singing only for them.

by Elora Sen

SUBIR HALDER