

THEATRE

Play it AGAIN

A SCENE FROM
WHO IS AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF?

Akarsh Khurana's Akvarious Productions is back with the Broadway hit Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Directed by Tahira Nath, this Edward Albee work tells the story of a middle-aged couple whose marriage has become a cynical affair. They invite a maths professor and his wife in the middle of the night and the stage is set for some drunken revelations. The play journeys across reality and illusion and the constant antithesis of the two. Nath and Aman Uppal play the lead, while Abhijit Dutta plays the professor and Mrunmayee Lagoo, his wife. At Mumbai's Prithvi Theatre, from August 4 to 5. by Pankti Mehta

DANCE

Step it Up

The two-day festival Sare Jahan Se Accha 2009 organised by Utsav brings together lesser-known forms of dance on August 9-10 at the India Habitat Centre, Delhi

The Mahari dance, originating from the Jagannath temple in the 11th century, and the Gotipua dance converged into the Odissi dance form.

Dancers learnt both styles and out of this blend emerged Odissi. Gurus like Kelucharan Mahapatra, Pankaj Charan Das and Deba Prasad Das reconstructed the technique. See its lyrical quality in Ranjana Gauhar's performance.

GURU SINGHAJIT SINGH

The Manipuri dance, whether folk, classical or modern, is devotional in nature. The dances are ritualistic, recreational and temporal. They are performed at a particular rite, ceremony or sacrifice. Guru Singhajit Singh and his group will present innovative and traditional dances in the Manipuri style.

Gotipua originated in the 16th century. The term 'goti' means single and 'pua' means boy. Young boys between the ages of 6 and 14 would dress as girls and were trained in dancing and singing. After performing till the age of 16, they gave up dancing, became gurus or joined theatre troupes. Watch Guru Bijay Kumar Sahoo and his team.
