

"I talk a lot and Khali doesn't. It will be fun."

She might have lost in Jhalak Dikhhla Jaa, but Hard Kaur isn't backing out. This time, she's the referee of a wrestling reality-cum-fiction show 100 per cent Lucha on Colors. The rapper throws some punches here.

Q. Quite a career change?

A. My tough image made the producers believe I would suit it.

Q. Your co-host, The Great Khali, doesn't talk much.

A. I talk a lot and he doesn't, so this is going to be fun.

Q. How did the gig with Pussycat Dolls happen?

A. Their manager called me after hearing my tracks. Now we have to do the final recording. I plan to make them sing in Hindi.

BOX BUDDIES

Farah Khan and Karan Johar may be best buddies but Farah seems to have an edge, at least as a TV host. The director has managed to snag the reticent Salman Khan for her talk fest Tere Mere Beach Mein on Star Plus. Every celebrity worth his brand endorsement deal appeared on Koffee With Karan, but Salman stayed away. But he succumbed and even faced Farah's questions about his love life. Wonder if the sudden change of heart happened because of Farah's appearance on his 10 Ka Dum. You help my TRP, I help yours.

Anchor Position

It's not his first time on a TV show but Sourav Ganguly is staying closer to home this time. He's taking charge as the anchor on Dadagiri Unlimited, a quiz show on Zee Bangla. A mix of wit and wisdom, the questions don't stop at general knowledge.

The contestants have to know anything from the creator of Sherlock Holmes to Rekha's real name. Dada seems to be taking his second innings very seriously. He shot three episodes a day for three days straight. "I hope I can bring Shah Rukh Khan to the hot seat. I could learn anchoring from him," said Ganguly. Would he want to teach SRK some cricket?

THE RIGHT SET

She may look like she's meant to be on a college campus, but Kannada actor Aindrita Ray has decided to bid the classroom goodbye. After a hit debut in Meravanige, Ray has ditched mark-sheets for box office results. A student of Bangalore's B.R. Ambedkar College, the Bangla-speaking actor was training to be a dentist like her father. After all, why would she be interested in perfecting other people's pearly whites when she's got enough reason to smile herself?
