districts. Through this, the government aims to better its rice and wheat production in the coming year.

The pioneer of horticulture in India, the state tops in its output in Mango, Grapes, Pomegranate etc. Apart from this farmers in floriculture also benefit from the various impetus that the state has lined for them.

Rural Development

Maharashtra has achieved a lot when it comes to rural development.

There are various schemes that are initiating development across the state. Houses, Roads and rural Infrastructure had been identified as primary needs.

Central to this is Yashwant Gram Samrudhi Yojana, a Public – State initiative that has completed 15440 infrastructure projects across the state. The rural population has contributed Rs. 212 crore of the cost whereas the State has contributed the rest.

With the Indira Awas Yojana, the government has built 453689 houses for citizens below the poverty line and SC/ST families. The grant has been hiked from Rs. 30,000/- to Rs. 45,000/- to enable more families to acquire a roof over their heads.

The Rajiv Gandhi Gramin Nivara Yojana No.1, has resulted in the completion of another 19426 houses as against the target of 19510 houses.

The Pradhan Mantri Gram Sadak Yojana has been effectively used to lay 13000 km of roads. A total of 3550 roads have been laid to connect 4716 hamlets and villages across the state. A total of Rs. 2106 crore have been invested in connecting these areas. In the process, 25 Zilla Parishads and 2 Panchayat Samitis have got ISO certificate for their qualitative efforts.

The Backward Region Grant Fund has been instrumental in financing the needs of the underdeveloped regions to get them at par with the more developed counterparts. The fruits of this initiative can be seen in districts like Dhule, Nandurbar, Bhandara, Gondia, Chandrapur, Amravati, Gadchiroli, Yavatmal, Nanded, Hingoli, Aurangabad and Ahmednagar.
