

The Jaipur FAMILY TREE

SAWAI MAN SINGH II

He was the adopted son of Maharaja Sawai Madho Singh II. Last ruling Maharaja of Jaipur.

Bones of CONTENTION

Ram Bagh Palace (worth about Rs 500 crore) is leased to the Taj Group. While the grandchildren get their father Jagat Singh's share, the extent of Gayatri Devi's share is still to be assessed. Jai Singh and Prithvi Raj Singh have already increased their shares and Bhawani Singh has legally challenged their moves.

Jai Mahal Palace (worth about Rs 300 crore) is also run by the Taj Group. The grandchildren have staked legal claim on what was their father's property which after his death, as part of a company deed, was taken over by Prithvi Raj. The case is pending before the Company Law Board.

Moti Doongri Fort Worth over Rs 100 crore, Gayatri Devi, Prithvi Raj and Jai claimed equal rights in a legal case but Bhawani says it his.

Lilypool A French-style palace, part of Ram Bagh Palace Complex, where Gayatri Devi stayed. The grandchildren are currently living there.

City Palace and its moveable properties (worth at least Rs 200 crore). The palace is Bhawani's residence but the other three brothers have demanded equal shares.

MAHARAJA WITH WIFE GAYATRI DEVI AND SON JAGAT (1957)
PHOTO BY CENTRAL PRESS/HULTON ARCHIVE/GETTY IMAGES

SMS Investment, clubs and other land (worth Rs 500 crore). The heirs haven't accepted the compensation offered by the government.

Properties allotted to three brothers Their father gave land, buildings and a palace in Jaipur to each.

Gayatri Devi's personal assets The grandchildren, Jai and Prithvi, and the Rhodes Children Foundation are expected to get a major share. The value could run into a few hundred crores if jewellery and paintings have not already been sold.