

Jihadi CONFESSIONS

From "Inside the Mind of the Bombers"
(INDIA TODAY, October 13, 2008)

"This is jihad for Allah, only the privileged get to do it. I have no regrets about what I did. Ask them to shoot me for this."

ZIA-UR REHMAN

"I experienced an awakening after I committed my life to Allah. Now nothing scares me, life and death are the same."

MOHAMMED SHAKEEL

"Sometimes you have to adopt evil to prevent a bigger one. It's not for me or for you; it's for Allah."

SAQUIB NISAR

INDIA TODAY's Special Correspondent Mihir Srivastava got an exclusive interview with the three terrorists who have been accused of several terror activities, including the September 13 Delhi serial blasts.

Zia-ur Rehman, 24

A third year student at Jamia Millia Islamia, accused of planting bombs at Connaught Place and Ahmedabad and providing logistical support.

"Whatever knowledge I have about Islam and what I understand about how things work in this world, I have no regrets about what I did. It is a jihad, it's a war. This is jihad for Allah, only the privileged get to do it. It is against Maharashtra for ignoring the Srikrishna Report; It is against what happened in Gujarat. I have no regrets about what I did and the way I did it. Ask them to shoot me for this.

"My father is upset with me. He told me that I am not his son. He does not understand jihad for Allah, and nothing else matters to me."

Mohammed Shakeel, 26

A final year student of economics at Jamia Millia Islamia, accused of planting bombs in Ahmedabad and Delhi's Karol Bagh.

"If you follow things that are happening in the world, also in India, Muslims are not
