Bright Moves

Classical dance has always been a symbol of India. The latest proof comes from the Canadian publishing house Second Story Press that is celebrating its 20th anniversary of publishing award-winning woman-centric books. It has listed 10 Dynamic Women Dancers of the world and thanks to Bharatnatyam dancer Geeta Chandran, India has found pride of place. "It is at such moments that I miss my gurus. It is a huge honour," says the dancer.

"It's about a woman who makes her dreams come true. The story is about the woman, her husband and a fantasy man."

Madhureeta Anand, filmmaker, on her first feature, Mere Khwabon Mein Jo Aaye.

LEARNING TO FLY

Hijack didn't exactly make Kaveri Jha take off. But the actor, who's worked in a few southern films, isn't crash-landing yet. The former Miss India contestant has completed shooting for Priyadarshan's Bun Bum Bole, an adaptation of Majid Majidi's Children of Heaven. "I play a girl who is from a poor family and how marrying into money changes her," says the 25-year-old, who is also juggling a career as an Air India cabin crew member.

Muse Worthy

New girl in town Rachna Shah seems to have a thing for artists. Her debut on the big screen was for a song in M.F. Husain's Meenaxi. For her first role, she plays Raja Ravi Varma's first muse in Ketan Mehta's Rang Rasiya. "I play a daasi who inspires him to paint," says Shah. She has also snagged parts in Vivek Sharma's Kal Kisne Dekha and Sagar Bellary's Kachcha Limboo.
