They left us in 2008, leaving an indelible mark. We pay them tribute, albeit in short hand, though their memories and their contribution, good or bad, will linger on.

FIELD MARSHAL S.H.F.J. MANEKSHAW

[1914-2008]

Manekshaw was a soldier drop-forged in the fires of WW II—he was injured in combat twice and nearly died on the battlefield. He engineered the surrender of 93,000 Pakistani troops in the 1971 war which saw the birth of Bangladesh. He would later joke that if a man said he was not afraid of dying, he was either probably lying or was a Gorkha.

BANDEEP SINGH

“Manekshaw engineered one of India’s greatest military victories.”

HEMANT CHAWLA

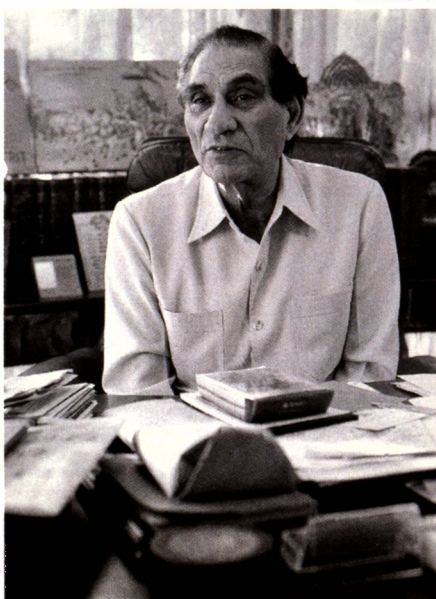

KRISHNA KUMAR BIRLA

[1918-2008]

Industrialist and former Rajya Sabha member who supported economic reforms in India in 1991. He founded the K.K. Birla Foundation to promote Hindi literature and the Birla Institute of Technology and Science at Pilani.

PITHWA HEMANT

“Chopra was one of the most progressive and prolific filmmakers of Bollywood.”

B.R. CHOPRA

[1914-2008]

The creator of Doordarshan’s popular Mahabharat series (1988) and films like Naya Daur (1957), Gumraah (1963) and Insaaf ka Taraazu (1980).
