SLAP HAPPY

There was dance so there had to be drama. The India Premiere League became the country's Great Tamasha. And adding tamacha to tamasha was Harbhajan Singh, who slapped Sreesanth (top) for ridiculing him. Though no one saw the slap, everyone saw Sreesanth's flood of tears thanks to repeat airplay. Later in the year, in a totally unrelated setting, designer Rohit Gandhi (bottom left) slapped Gaurav Gupta during the two simultaneous fashion weeks in Delhi. Gandhi said Gupta delayed his show at the Emporio Fashion Week deliberately. For once, there was more action off the ramp.

AGES APART

The leading man's fascination with the younger—much younger—woman continued. Nubile nymphets in their early 20s were especially preferred. Anushka Sharma (top) fresh from Bangalore, matched steps with 43-year-old Shah Rukh Khan, Asin (bottom) floated in and out of similarly aged Aamir Khan's memory in Ghajini. And even in the New Year, 41-year-old Akshay Kumar will keep his date with Deepika Padukone. Salman Khan went a step ahead. Just out of her teens, British beauty queen Lisa Lazarus has been chosen to romance him in Veer. Whatever happened to women's equality?

ALL FOR LOVE

Haryana's deputy chief minister went from being blue-eyed boy to banned boy. Congress leader Chander Mohan gave the state the scandal of the year when he dumped his wife, converted to Islam and married his lawyer-flame Anuradha Bali. He became Chand Moham-mad, she became Fiza, he ditched his Mercedes, the Congress ditched him. Yet to see if it's a happy ending.
