

33rd Anniversary Issue

DECEMBER 29, 2008

Recording the heartbeat of history—33 years of the best, the biggest, the coolest and the funkiest in India. But whether it is mere coincidence or a country's karma, we're born in a time of crisis and celebrate our anniversary in the midst of one.

“ This issue was a historical sightseeing tour through political, cultural and social ups and downs in the country. It was an astonishing journey of moments that make India. ”

Good Show

In 33 years, INDIA TODAY has witnessed and reported upfront India's transition from a humble third world country to one of the biggest global economies ("33rd Anniversary Special", December 29). With your head held high, you have valiantly reported varied events with an eye on the future and an ear to the past. Way to go. Keep up the good work.

Braveheart Heroes

Not just INDIA TODAY, but all of us should salute those who laid down their lives fighting for the cause of peace during Mumbai terror attacks ("Heavy Mettle", December 15). Those who survived will remind us that we should

Bits and Pieces

Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh have proved beyond doubt that people vote for those who promise and can deliver ("Power of the Provincial, December 22). The Congress lost the ballot battle due to internal squabbles. It's high time it learnt from its losses.

not buckle under any sort of pressure. Often it is not weapons but guts that matter, as Senior Police Inspector Nagappa Mali rightly noted. Brave men like him and others proved that evil will never succeed if we stand united in the face of any tragedy, to do whatever it takes to save ourselves and others with our might which can beat any force.
