

HITS and MISSES

High fives and low fives, and some fives from in between, of the year that was

Historians had hissy fits but Akbar with a six pack and Jodhaa, a Rani of Jhansi clone, made it a choli-ripper right out of a Regency romance.

TOP FILMS

Jaane Tu Ya Jaane Na

Imran Khan debuts cute in this fresh off-campus romance with a boy and girl named Rats and Meow.

Slumdog Millionaire

Danny Boyle's movie mixes poverty, call centres, game shows and gang wars to create a dizzying Cinderella story. Schmaltz, yes, but superbly done.

Welcome to Sajjanpur

Lusty rustic write letters to lovers in Shyam Benegal's in-your-face from middle India.

Mumbai Meri Jaan

When Mumbai stops to pay homage to the 2006 blast victims in Nishikant Kamat's film, your heart does too.

WORST FILMS

Love Story 2050: Yo, bro? Pink teddy, red wig, Boman Irani acting weird, a time machine that looks like a hot air balloon. This is sci-fi gone low-tech.

Drona: He glowered, braved sandstorms, got Priyanka Chopra to leap about, got weapons crafted in South Africa. Nothing saved this superhero.

Mission Istanbul: Getting a backdrop like Istanbul to make a film on chasing

Osama bin Laden and then making a turkey? Yes, it's possible.

Roadside Romeo: Naked dogs romancing each other, while yet another naked dog channels Rajnikant. Woof. Oof.

Maan Gaye Mughal-e-Azam: Rahul Bose a RAW agent? Mallika Sherawat as Paresh Rawal's wife? Kay Kay Menon a Pakistani spy? Help.
