youngsters have preferred the anonymity of back benches, a set of young MPs, resolutely rural, found their way through the labyrinths of Parliament. Kiren Rijiju, the young member from Arunachal Pradesh, has never been featured on Page 3 in the Delhi papers nor has he ever been featured in the more serious sections of the papers despite taking his duties more seriously than any other in the current Lok Sabha.

There is a complacency creeping into our highest representative institution. The devaluation of parliamentary authority coupled with the trivialisation of debate and the poor levels of participation would only go to nullify the constitutional rationale of its existence. Parliament is the grand inquest of the nation, the platform for civilised discourse. The confidence in it must be maintained. And it should start with the members. ■

Attendance as on November 30, 2008

* Resigned his seat on November 14, 2008
