

ect to Gujarat. He took India to new heights of glory by acquiring the famed Jaguar and Land Rover and most importantly, was undeterred by 26/11 attack on the Taj Hotels in Mumbai. Kudos, Mr Tata, for putting up such a brave front.

MADHU R.D. SINGH,
via www.indiatoday.in

Under Threat

It is obvious that the Mumbai Police bungled big time and the indiscipline and indifference of the Commissioner of Police Hasan Gafoor explains it all ("Force Divider", January 5). Gafoor exhibited the lowest level of sense of duty and responsibility, both before and after the attacks. He preferred to be a silent witness to the mayhem. If the ruling political class had to bear the brunt for their inefficient handling of the situation, why are the cops being exempted? They also deserve stringent punishment for their careless and negligent approach.

GROUP CAPTAIN (RETD.)
H. RAJAGOPAL,
via www.indiatoday.in

Crime Call

The heinous homicide of engineer Manoj Gupta epitomises the savage psyche of arrivistes for money extortion ("Birthday Bash-Up", January 5). This criminal episode brings forth the immunity that political protagonists enjoy in our system. People should not only condemn, but comprehend their exigent responsibilities towards democracy and the nation without paying any heed to rhetoric of rabble-rousers and demagogues. People should act to make politicians of Maya's ilk bite the dust in elections. Otherwise anarchists will flourish and social insecurity will insidiously become prevalent throughout the country. Sheikh Hasina Government, in return, must create a favourable climate for discussing the question of illegal migrants and the entry of banned militant outfits. As a good neighbour, Bangladesh must cooperate with India not just for its own good, but also for peace in the sub-continent. In short, Hasina needs to bring in much-needed change.

BIDYUT KUMAR CHATTERJEE,
via www.indiatoday.in

“India's dignity is held hostage and at such troubled times, it should avoid buying time and instead prepare a tough action plan against the evil forces being harboured by Pakistan.”

TAPAS CHAKRABORTY, via www.indiatoday.in hout the country.

INDU SHANKAR,
via www.indiatoday.in

Small Measures

To beat the odds, the newly-formed Government will need economic cooperation and assistance from India ("Big Shake Up", January 12). To improve ties, the

Corrigendum

The photograph of Rajiv Gandhi at the funeral of his mother Indira Gandhi published in the 33rd Anniversary issue ("Candid Camera", December 29) was taken by Debatosh Sengupta, not Raghu Rai. The error is regretted.

EDITOR

30
YEARS AGO IN INDIA
TODAY

FEBRUARY 16-28, 1979

Fine Play

He is a bit puffy about the face and self-conscious about his age but even against the muted background of an English pub Saeed Jaffrey, the star of Satyajit Ray's Shatranj Ke Khilari, behaves every bit like a displaced Lucknow nawab. He munches tobacco, twiddles with the rings on his fingers and speaks chaste Urdu. As the only Indian actor who has managed to survive in the bitterly competitive world of Western showbusiness, Jaffrey together with his ex-wife Madhur, started out on the stage in London over 20 years ago.

Today Jaffrey devotes more and more of his time to films and television. His big success has been his part in Ray's film. The film opened to rave notices in the British press, and Jaffrey after long years of struggling for recognition in London, is euphoric at being rediscovered as a fine actor. He says, "The role was a birthday present from the great master..."

Sunil Sethi

Readers are recommended to make appropriate enquiries before sending money, incurring expenses or entering into commitments in relation to any advertisement appearing in this publication. The India Today Group does not vouch for any claims made by the advertisers of products and services. The printer, publisher, editor-in-chief and the editor of the India Today Group publications shall not be held liable for any consequences in the event of such claims not being honoured by the advertisers.

E-MAIL YOUR LETTERS TO: letters.editor@intoday.com
FAX THEM TO: 011-23316180
OR LOG ON TO: www.indiatoday.in