

BOWLING OUT

ANIL KUMBLE, India's Test captain and its most successful bowler, walks out at Delhi's Ferozshah Kotla one last time, his teammates forming a guard of honour for the man called "Jumbo." After 956 wickets for India, Kumble retired from cricket last week. Let's just give him a ten on ten.

DELHI | Political Gay-dar

The usually verbose Indian politician rarely struggles for words, except when asked about legalising homosexuality. The Cabinet is divided on the issue with Union ministers Shivraj Patil and H.R. Bhardwaj against decriminalising homosexuality while Anbumani Ramadoss supports this move along with Oscar Fernandes. Congress spokesman Manish Tiwari said that while he is for "anything consensual" between two adults, it is not necessary for the Congress to take a stand on every issue. BJP's Prakash Javedkar says that his party had not discussed this issue. PMO sources say that Manmohan Singh is not too keen to stoke a controversy at the fag end of his career. However, when asked about same sex marriages, he smiled and said, "Such a thing in our country would not have, I think, wide appreciation." Read between the lines. by Priya Sahgal

NATIONAL PARTIES GO INTO NERVOUS CONFUSION WHEN ASKED ABOUT THEIR STAND ON LEGALISING HOMOSEXUALITY.
