SET MATCH

The naanis decide. The buzz is that tennis ace Sania Mirza is to be engaged shortly and will wed some time next year. It is not a decision of the parents but grandmothers. So goes the tale in Hyderabad. The man in waiting is the strapping but somewhat shy Mohammed Sohrab Mirza, still a student in Hyderabad, who is wary of glitz and glare.

COSMO

Don't Stop the Music

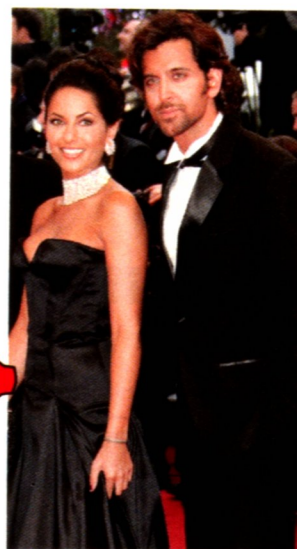

It's very hard to please Oprah Winfrey. But a UK-based Indian duo has done just that. Suleman Mirza and Madhu Singh of Britain's Got Talent fame were invited to burn the stage for a segment on Oprah's show recently. "We have very different styles but it works," says Singh. Perfect moves!

Abhishek and Aishwarya Rai-Bachchan owned the red carpet at Cannes 2009 when wifey wore a one-shouldered Elie Saab gown and husband cleaned up good in a black suit and striped tie.

CANNES COUPLES

In a messy bow-tie Hrithik Roshan walked his Kites co-star Barbara Mori for whom wearing a Roberto Cavalli gown was enough. Barbara, lose the jewels. Hrithik, get a razor. Now.

Return of Om

Many preened on the red carpet but Om Puri was the unseen star of the Cannes film festival when it was announced that the BBC would be making a sequel to its global hit East is East. Puri will reprise his role as a Pakistani father in East London struggling to find a balance as his children grow up.
