

Mandate for Stability

MAY 25, 2009

Performance pays is the dominant message from the electorate. The historic verdict also gives the UPA a mandate to tackle immediate crises unencumbered by the obstructive allies of its earlier avatar.

“The outcome of the polls shows that India has voted for firmness in governance and not the inconsistency of a coalition. It is now time for Sonia and her entourage to ‘walk the talk’.”

Flawless Victory

The results have again demonstrated the resilience and maturity of the electorate notwithstanding their humble background (“The Comeback Couple”, May 25). The Congress should now go full throttle on economic reforms as the country is still beset with the problems of poverty, illiteracy, unemployment and malnourishment. It should adopt the best-proven practices of the world to tackle these daunting issues.

The serendipitous success of the BSP in the Uttar Pradesh Assembly polls afflicted Mayawati with illusions (“The Hits and Misses”, May 25). Her attempt at engineering an amorphous social com-

Fighting the Monster

The Pakistan Army's operation against the Taliban should keep the safety of civilians in mind (“Taking on the Taliban”, May 25). The US should take responsibility of the tragedies visiting the region. Also, a United Nations task force should guide operations and relief work in the affected area.

bine exasperated the people. She forgot that the democracy of the country has matured and so has its electorate. Ergo people hamstrung the avaricious wealthy diva. INDU SHANKAR, Varanasi

Tryst with Dynasty

As the fourth generation of the first family, Rahul Gandhi has already started exhibiting its qualities and traditions, particularly at a time when persons like L.K. Advani and Narendra Modi with tainted records of communal criminality are also vying for the top job (“The Rahul Offensive”, May 18). Besides the dynasty syndrome, the aristocracy of intelligence and loyalty to the nation are also important.
