BONDING WITH INDIA

Roger Moore

1982

As Roger Moore waltzed through the streets of Udaipur, sometimes on an auto-rickshaw and at other times with some of the country's most beautiful models, India came close to Hollywood glamour. Though the three-week shooting schedule in India would only yield 20-30 minutes of the James Bond movie, Octopussy, the production estimated that it would spend nearly a quarter of its budget of over Rs 22.5 crore in India.
