

6 No Stopping Him Lt. Manoj Kumar Pandey

Posthumously honoured with the Param Vir Chakra, Lieutenant Pandey of 1/11 Gorkha Rifles was tasked to clear enemy positions to prevent his battalion from getting exposed in the daylight. Shot on a ledge, he made it to the top of a cliff, busting enemy bunkers before being killed (INDIA TODAY, August 30, 1999). His daredevilry finally led to the capture of Khalubar.

7 Never Give Up Grenadier Yogendra Singh Yadav

The sole survivor of an attack on Tiger Hill, the 19-year-old Yadav took 15 bullets in the process of clearing two enemy bunkers. His arm broken, he rolled down the hill to warn fellow soldiers from his unit of an impending attack. (INDIA TODAY, August 30, 1999). It earned him the Param Vir Chakra.

9 Captain Courageous Captain Vikram Batra

Captain Batra of the 13 Jammu and Kashmir Rifle immortalised himself by turning a soft-drink ad's tagline "Yeh dil mange more" (My heart asks for more) into an iconic war cry while showcasing on national television the enemy's machine guns he had captured in his first gallant exploits in the Kargil war. Christened Sher Shah by the Pakistanis after he had launched several attacks on them (INDIA TODAY August 30, 1999), the 25-year-old captain was killed on July 7, 1999 while trying to rescue an injured officer during the counter-attack. This heroic son of Palampur in Himachal Pradesh was awarded the Param Vir Chakra posthumously.

10 Mission Possible: Tukaram Ombale

Rarely is a terrorist involved in a fidayeen attack caught alive. But this daredevil 48-year-old assistant sub-inspector of the Mumbai Police made the impossible happen. During the 26/11 Mumbai terror attack, he sprang on Mohammad Ajmal Amir Kasab at Girgaum Chowpatty

8 One-man Army Rifleman Sanjay Kumar

At 34, Kumar is the youngest of three surviving Param Vir Chakra decorated soldiers. During the Kargil war, this rifleman of the 13 Jammu and Kashmir Rifles volunteered to be a leading scout of a column tasked to capture area Flat Top of Point 4875 in the Mushkoh Valley. When automatic fire from one of the enemy bunkers posed stiff opposition and stalled the column, Kumar charged at them. Despite being hit in the leg and hip, he single-handedly wiped out a bunker after others from his unit had fallen. (INDIA TODAY, August 30, 1999).

and caught hold of the barrel of the AK-47 rifle with both hands, taking all the bullets in his chest and enabling fellow officers to overpower the militant. Even Union Home Minister P. Chidambaram had a lump in his throat while recalling Ombale's courage during his speech in Parliament.

by Ramesh Vinayak and
Sandeep Unnithan