

TWO TO TANGO

SANIA MIRZA AND Mahesh Bhupathi, aka the Babe and the Backhand, find themselves in the focus of the tennis world after winning the mixed doubles title at the Australian Open in Melbourne. It was the first Grand Slam title together for Mirza and Bhupathi, the first also for Mirza, but Bhupathi's 11th.

DELHI | Poorly-Spun Web

In a classic case of "me-too", Murli Manohar Joshi is the second BJP leader to try and 'connect' with the youth through a website and a personal blog. It is no coincidence that Joshi's cyber-musings came shortly after BJP's prime ministerial candidate L.K. Advani's debut on the Web, as party insiders say that Joshi had been itching for a byte. However, a visit to the website throws up this as an introduction to Joshi: "He is a thinking leader, who infused his mallow (sic) wisdom into the strategies for developing human resources during his stint as Union HRD minister in NDA government... a towering visionary, whose approach to development is second to none." Yes, yes, all very well, but how what about his approach towards spelling and grammatical mistakes? Maybe the time for 'mallowness' is over and some severe linguistic standards need to be imposed by Professor Joshi. by Bhavna Vij-Aurora

M.M. JOSHI'S WEBSITE OPENS WITH PURPLE PROSE ABOUT THE FORMER EDUCATION MINISTER WHICH COULD HAVE DONE WITH A SPELLCHECK.
