

Week Wicket

Cricketers peddling cola and shoes on TV isn't anything new. But here's a first. Skipper Mahendra Singh Dhoni has agreed to be the brand ambassador of the first Kolkata Fashion Week. "We have signed him for four years. He's fashionable, so he was the right choice to represent the event," says Yudhajit Dutta, director of Mindscape Maestros, organisers of the fiesta. Dhoni is in New Zealand now and there's little chance he will be in the country when the event kicks off in April. But we can't help but wonder what a cricketer possibly has in common with fashion? Lots of moolah, perhaps?

Moving On

After her deft legwork on the hockey field in Chak De India, Shilpa Shukla wants to try different moves. The actor has signed up for the third season of Jhalak Dikhhla Jaa. "Bollywood is all about dancing, so I'm actually acquiring a new skill. I'm looking forward to my films releasing and this will help me gain popularity," says Shukla. Will her moves be the right ones?

ROLE SWAPPING

They won over the Universe with their practised smiles. Now for the first time Sushmita Sen and Lara Dutta will come together in David Dhawan's Do Knot Disturb. The two play onscreen rivals in this comedy about a businessman trying to hide his affair with a supermodel from his wife. "Sushmita played the model in Biwi No. 1 but this time she's the wife and Lara's the hotshot model," says producer Vashu Bhagnani. It's time to bare your claws ladies.

The only angle from which to solve a problem is the try-angle.
