

AJIT
JAIN

2

58, Business Executive

Oracle in Waiting

Because the world's smartest investor, the Oracle of Omaha, Warren Buffet, who controls more than 50 companies with a combined $107 billion in revenue in 2008, has hinted that the president of the Berkshire Hathaway's Reinsurance division will be his successor. Because if this happens, the IIT-Kharagpur and Harvard graduate will be in charge of Berkshire Hathaway assets worth a staggering $109 billion.

Did you
know?

His family thought the elder brother was the brainy one in the Jain home.

LAKSHMI
N. MITTAL

1

59, Industrialist

Emperor of Steel

Because what he says matters in world markets as well as global economies and when he talks, international leaders sit up and pay attention.

Because he controls 10 per cent of the global production of steel, and even after losing $24 billion of his $51 billion in the global financial meltdown, he has enough to continue being counted among the five richest in a world of 1,125 billionaires.

Because he is now an emerging powerhouse in energy, having invested in oilfields, refineries and coalfields across borders.

Did you
know?

He has signed some of his biggest deals with ordinary ballpoint pens.

JAY MANDAL