Asin is headed back to Kerala. No, the Ghajini actress isn't giving up Hindi films, but she is taking the trip to learn Kalaripayattu, an ancient martial arts form. "This is for the film 19th Step, which is being produced by Walt Disney. The character is supposed to be proficient in this art," says Asin, whose training will begin by the end of this month. Kicking up quite a storm, eh?

After three years of a man snagging the top spot on Indian Idol, Sourabhee Debbarma, the petite 22-year-old from Tripura finally became the first woman to achieve the title. She performed on stage for the last time with her favourite actor John Abraham. "It was the best moment for me. John said he was sure I would win," said Debbarma, who has begun recording her debut album. This girl's got her stage set.

"I look forward to playing for the UAE squad. But my wish has been to play for India."

SKIN IS IN

Sophie Choudry will soon be slipping into a swimsuit in Aa Dekhen Zara. The VJ-actress plays a mysterious woman in the thriller. Dismissing that she's just there to add glamour to the film, Choudry says, "I'm not in a swimsuit just for the eyeballs. I worked out like crazy with my trainer and ate right. It's all about looking fit, toned and yet curvy. I'm proud of myself for achieving this."
