

Is this the right time to start a business ?

Yes

Be innovative and successful

There is always the debate between people who say there is a recession and no it is not, and whether it has touched India and others it has not, whether it is the right time to start a business or not? it can go on and on before it ends the so called recession itself would have gone.

There are always opportunities which present themselves even during an accepted recession period, it is the thirst to reach newer heights of success and a visionary eye. I for innovation in you which sees the opportunity to move on to the best of times and make a success out of it,

There is a story of Kit Kat and Mars , while kit kat once tried to thin its chocolate thickness to be out of the red during a recession period, its competitor Mars increased the chocolate thickness thus grabbed a market share which it couldn't do in all those years of growth, It depends on how you look at things.

Did you know the global health, personal care and wellness industry is a trillion dollar industry only next to automobile and Information technology, and various studies and survey's say this is one industry which is not affected by the global recession or the down turn especially in a country like India....

Here is presenting an Impact opportunity from Blizz Biomed Systems.

