

KARNATAKA - MARCHING TOWARDS PROGRESS

Welcome to Karnataka, the land of spellbinding heritage sites, breathtaking landscapes, exotic wildlife, pristine beaches, old-worldly temple towns, a rich cultural legacy, indigenous arts forms and warm people.

The very name Karnataka is a source of inspiration. It is the sacred land of holy men; the unique land of great warriors; A glorious land which witnessed many a religion, culture, literature, education and arts. A land known for religious harmony; the first ever soil that echoed the ringing of the bell of freedom struggle. Karnataka was a home of a high level culture and civilisation since ancient days. It had established very good cultural relations with other parts of the country. Karnataka has continuously, since several centuries, been a region which patronised the cause of several religions. It is an exemplary place of religious harmony, despite perturbed situations seen occasionally across the country. It has been a prime seat of religious learning also. Vaishnavites, Saivites, Buddhists, Jains availed plenty of opportunities to propagate their religions since several centuries in this part of the country without hindrances.

Karnataka has become one of the leading states in the field of industrial development both in the private and public sectors and in the area of computer software, which has attracted national and international firms to the city of Bangalore. The state capital was long ago chosen by the central government for the location of a number of industries. The various development programmes initiated by the Government in its march towards progress is commendable.
