

Unusual entrepreneurs

INNOVATORS

Innovation, says Steve Jobs, distinguishes between a leader and a follower. He should know. Innovation could mean a groundbreaking invention or an incremental change in process. It's the philosophy behind Tulsi Tanti's windmill energy behemoth and Kunwer Sachdev's inverter empire. It's also the principle that guided Arvind Rao and Mouli Raman's telecom value-added services and Sashi Reddi's flash games. Or Pramod Chaudhary who adapted the technology used in fermentation of molasses for biofuel research. The idea existed. All it needed was a little technological lift-off.

success MANTRA

Be an optimist and believe in the thinking power of those who live outside India's cities

biggest ACHIEVEMENT

Praj takes credit for having set up the first ethanol fuel plant in the UK, Poland and Germany

growth PATH

Almost all the 800 employees of Praj Industries come from semi-urban or rural areas