

Served Haute

Liz Hurley wore a sari and made it an international phenomenon. Sometime ago Madonna made mehndi global. But it looks like there's a new Indian import on the block. Now, it's the maang tika wooing the West. At the recently held American Music Awards in New York, singer Alicia Keys stepped out in a cobalt blue gown with a silver maang tika as the eye-catching accessory. Keys was dressed by India-born New York-based designer Naeem Khan, who is becoming a hot favourite with red carpet regulars like Eva Longoria Parker, Jennifer Lopez and of course, Keys. Isn't this what we call the next big thing?

Saba Azad, actor, on her forthcoming film, Dil Kabaddi

If at First...

Mumbai Salsa didn't work wonders for her, but actor Shaurya Chauhan wants to make the right noises with Horn Ok Please. Starring Muzammil Ibrahim and Nana Patekar, it is “a comedy of errors”, as Chauhan puts it. The film has been in the news for all the wrong reasons. She must be hoping the going gets OK after the film.

HEARTS ON FIRE

One film old she might be, but Jannat actor Sonal Chauhan, 23, has a lot to dance about. Chauhan has been chosen to share stage space with Canadian rocker Bryan Adams who will be crooning in Mumbai in January. The gig is being organised by a jewellery brand and it's the first time that a Bollywood actor has been chosen to match steps with the international singer. Though Chauhan can't disclose details of how she was selected, she says “I have been listening to his songs since childhood. I am really looking forward to performing with him. I even remember the lyrics of all his songs.” Her second film might take time, but that doesn't mean Chauhan isn't on Cloud Number 9
